CHARLEVOIX, Mich.—The 51st annual meeting of the Central Conference of American Rabbis closed Sunday, electing President Emil W. Leipziger, New Orleans, and the following other officers: James G. Heller, Cincinnati, vice-president; Harry S. Margolis, St. Paul, treasurer; Isaac E. Marcuson, Macon, Ga., recording secretary for his 24th year, and Sidney Regner, Reading, Pa., corresponding secretary.

The meeting approved the recommendations made in Rabbi Leipziger's annual message, which include endorsement of a "coolly-conceived and balanced" national defense policy, a proposal that Jewish institutions of learning create graduate schools and research departments in order to make room for rabbis and scholars from East European centers of learning and praise for the Dominican refugee settlement project.

Elected to fill vacancies on the C.C.A.R. executive board are Rabbis Binstock, Chicago; Frisch, San Antonio; Glazer, New York; Goodman, Austin, Tex.; Gup, Columbus, O., and Mark, Nashville. Elected to the board of managers of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations are Rabbis Feinstein, Chattanooga, and Starrels, Albuquerque. Elected to the Hebrew Union College board of governors are Rabbis Heller, Cincinnati; Levy, Chicago; Rhine, Hot Springs, Ariz.

Dave Sablosky, first alternate, will replace Jacob Solotken, who will be unable to attend. Abe Bortz, another alternate, will also attend.

Accompanying their husbands will be Mrs. Gallin, Mrs. Charry and Mrs. Talesnick, while Mrs. Frisch will join her husband Saturday.

Mrs. H. Cohen's Father
Dies In Columbus, O

Mrs. Harry Cohen will return Sunday from Columbus, O., where she was called by the death of her father, Abraham E. Goldberg, president of the Goldberg Iron and Steel Company, who died Monday, June 17. Mr. Goldberg, who was one of the leaders of the Jewish community, was a frequent visitor in Indianapolis.

Attending the funeral from Indianapolis were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cohen and family, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Perk, Mrs. Max Rutenberg and Mrs. Harry Miller.

Believe General Jewish Council Will Unify
U. S. Jewry, Begin To Act

STIRRED from its lethargy by the opening of hostilities in World War II last September, the General Jewish Council called an emergency meeting which issued a statement declaring that "it was the unanimous agreement of all those present that the emergencies of the present moment require an intensification of activities and a unification of the efforts of agencies engaged in the defense of the rights of the Jews."

This hopeful statement was followed by a meeting on October 1. That was the last official word heard about the "emergencies of the present moment" requiring an "intensification of activities and a unification of the efforts of agencies engaged in the defense of the rights of the Jews."

But now the world and world Jewry is faced with far greater perils than in last September. This paper believes that the General Jewish Council is again meeting to adopt a course of action. This time unquestionably unity will be effected. The work of the Anti-Defamation League and other agencies will be coordinated and United States Jewry will be provided with an authoritative group to do what it can to protect and ameliorate the plight of world Jewry. The announcement, no doubt, will be forthcoming shortly.

Addressing the Reform Rabbinate at the meeting of the Central Conference of American Rabbis in Charlevoix, Dr. Jacob R. Marcus of the Hebrew Union College faculty, without attempting to discuss the particular situation comprehensively, stated: "The possibility of the transportation of great masses of Jews from hostile, culturally low environment, and their colonization under governmental auspices will no doubt be carefully weighed. To see that such a transplanting of the Jewish masses be more than a cruel deportation, it is essential that world Jewry create a powerful representative organization that can make this transfer spell a new chapter of hope in the history of the Jews."

In the present situation, the General Jewish Council, although it probably will transform itself from a policy-making to a functional group, will unquestionably resign if it cannot cope with the exigencies of the moment. Dr. Marcus' speech was evidently prepared before France's capitulation, and it is evident now that the "world Jewry" he speaks of is American Jewry, almost exclusively.

So that added onto the worries of the G. J. C. is the broader and more difficult task of making provision for the welfare of Jewries of stricken nations. This would indicate then that whatever new alignment emerges from the present sessions of the G. J. C., the Joint Distribution Committee will be one of the organizations included. That means, too, that the Zionists will be represented in the new body.

In other words, the G. J. C. will be enlarged into a functional agency providing not only the centralized authority for U. S. Jewry, but taking care of the responsibilities of U. S. Jewry in connection with world Jewry.

France To Yield Refugees;
Rothschild Head Escapes
To Britain On Small Ship

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON.—Thousands of German Jewish refugees who had not been able to flee from France and those in the French colonies were in danger this week of being turned over to the Reich under the terms of the crushing armistice agreement, which provides for surrender of the French fleet, disarmament of the French army and Nazi occupation of more than half of France.

Germany's power to demand any German subjects it desires is stated in Article XIX of the armistice agreement, which says: "... The French Government is to hand over all German subjects indicated by the German Government who are in France or French overseas territory."

How many of France's 400,000 Jews and 42,000 German refugees remained in the country was impossible to ascertain since there had been an exodus during the week between Premier Henri Philippe Petain's request for an armistice and the signing of the agreement.

Refugees were reported to be pouring across the Spanish border in disorderly flight. Baron Eugene de Rothschild of Paris, with only five centimes on his person, was said to be among a group which arrived at San Sebastian.

Another member of the famous banking family, Baron Robert de Rothschild, philanthropist and a leader in refugee aid in Paris, arrived in England, himself now a refugee. He had joined the French army last September.

Ship Carries 1,300
Leon Blum, former premier, arrived safely in London.

Baron Robert, together with Henri Bernstein, the playwright, were among 1,300 persons who made the voyage from a Biscayne port aboard a small ship which normally carries 180 passengers. A newspaper correspondent on the ship told of seeing Baron Rothschild, "once one of the richest men in the world, patiently standing in line, plate in hand, waiting for a dish of rice and meat."

Eri de Rothschild, younger son of Baron Robert, was believed to have been killed in action while serving with the French forces.

Meanwhile, concern was expressed over the fate of the French Jews and German emigres caught in the German-occupied part of France.

Exiles In Trap

Jews and foreign political refugees who were unable to escape from Paris before the Nazi occupation are in mortal terror, it was reported. Thousands of refugees from Nazi rule in Poland, Czechoslovakia and Austria were caught in Paris and were hiding in the woods around the capital or in cities to the south.

It was reported that Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler arrived to assume police supervision of the capital.

Demand Right To Fight—Jabotinsky

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK.—In the near future a "co-belligerent" Jewish army will be fighting as an ally of Britain under the British army's command, Vladimir Jabotinsky prophesied in an address before several thousand persons at a mass meeting held at the Manhattan Center under the auspices of the New Zionist Organization.

"I challenge the Jews, wherever still free, to demand the right of fighting the giant rattlesnake, not just under British or French or Polish labels, but as a Jewish army," Jabotinsky said. "Some liars shout that we only want others to fight; some whisper that a Jew only makes a good soldier when squeezed in between Gentile comrades. I challenge the Jewish youth to give them the lie."

He urged American Jews to demand the right to be able to fight in such an army. "It is for them to consult the Government or the Congress as to whether it is lawful or patriotic, so long as America as a whole cannot step in, for individual Americans to defend her cause in British or Polish or Jewish ranks."

Col. John H. Patterson, commander of Jewish battalions in Palestine during the World War, warning that a German victory would be followed by pogroms throughout the world, said: "If I were a Jew nothing would give me greater pleasure than to show the German criminals the Jews of to-

State, District Heads To Attend Banquet At Broadmoor Tuesday

With dignitaries of the District and the State Association present, the Indianapolis Lodge of B'nai B'rith will honor Samuel J. Mantel, newly-elected president of District No. 2, with a banquet set for 6:15 p. m. Tuesday, July 2, at the Broadmoor County Club.

Among those already having announced their intention of attending are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Woldman, of Cleveland, O., Michael Sharlitt, superintendent of Bellefaire, the Cleveland Jewish Orphan Home; Max Soffer, of St. Louis, first vice president of District 2, and Tony Levitan and Harry Resnick, past presidents of the Louisville lodge. Mrs. Woldman, is president of the Women's Auxiliaries of District 2.

The program will be short. Isidore Feibleman will be toastmaster, and Louis J. Borinstein, who together with him, is a past president of the district, will deliver a talk. Richard E. Gutstadt, director of the Anti-Defamation League, may attend, it was said.

The installation of new officers of both the Indianapolis Lodge and the A. Z. A. will also be held.

William Meyers is chairman of arrangements, and Mrs. Max Farb is chairman of the Women's Auxiliary's ticket selling committee. Tickets are $1.25.

In the first century of the common era, one out of every fifteen white men was a Jew; today the proportion is 1 to 60.

COOL OFF RIDES START JUNE 30

The popular "cool off" night rides, inaugurated by the local transit company on all street car, trackless trolley and bus lines last summer for the benefit of sweltering citizens, will again be offered this year, according to an announcement made this week.

This special night riding privilege will begin Sunday evening, June 30, and continue nightly thereafter for a limited period. Night ride "cool off" tickets will be available for 15 cents from all operators and will be good between the hours of 7 and 11 p. m. on the nights issued.

For the payment of 15 cents a night rider will receive a book of ten tickets which will make it possible for him to ride continuously for a four-hour period.

The stopover privilege will be granted night riders this summer. This will make it possible for them to alight at any point along the line and re-board when they so desire. It will not be necessary for night riders to secure transfers when changing from one line to another.

Last year several thousand citizens took advantage of the night ride privilege to enjoy the cool, refreshing trip about town and to see the different parts of the city.

Operators of trolleys and buses will detach a ticket from the book at the beginning of each ride. Only one person can ride on each book of tickets. Full information may be received by calling Riley 1571.

Fight Equality—Word

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency
NEW YORK.—An organization calling itself the "American-by-Statesmanship Crusade for the Restricted Franchise" is distributing throughout the United States a manifesto urging "Gentile people" to join in a crusade against "equality, fraternity, etc."

The manifesto implies that among the "inferiors" who should be disenfranchised are the Jews, who, the statement says, "have organized a state within our state which has corrupted Christian economics." The organization's address is the building in which the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd Steamship lines are located.

Freedom of the Press Submits Hitler Poem

To the Editor:
LULLABY TO HITLER
And so the tears will flow,
As does the blood of men;
A well of grief and woe
Becomes an ocean then.

Its tragic waves ride high—
All this your creation
Herr Hitler, by and by,
Will seek a destination.

And you will be the goal.
Can you then face the flow,
The anguished tears that roll
To quench you? Beastly foe!

You gave these waters birth.
And they will give you death!
May it be soon, for earth
Writhes 'neath your sordid breath.

World Jewish Congress To Call Pan American Meeting This Summer

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK—With refugee Jews and others apparently hopelessly trapped in France, the 1,000,000 Jews in Rumania facing a black future under the new totalitarian regime and Hitler's domination spreading through Europe, the World Jewish Congress is turning the emphasis of its work to the American continent, Dr. Nahum Goldmann, administrative committee chairman, revealed at a press conference at the Hotel Astor.

Dr. Goldmann, who arrived here on the United States liner Washington last Friday, said it was planned to call a Pan-American Jewish Conference, tentatively scheduled for the end of summer and probably to be held in Washington. Purpose of the meeting will be to rally the Jews for defense of the Americas and for increased aid to the victims of Nazism and Fascism in Europe.

As part of the shift in emphasis, Dr. Goldmann said, it is planned to move the world headquarters of the Congress to the United States. The office in Geneva will continue to carry on relief work insofar as it is able, and political activities in Europe will be conducted from recently opened London headquarters.

"The time has come for the mobilization of the resources of the five and a half million Jews on the American continent in order to safeguard the survival of the Jewish people," he declared. "A Pan-American Jewish Conference to establish such close cooperation is of the utmost necessity."

American Jewish Congress Drops Youth Division For Backing Youth Congress

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK.—The American Jewish Congress Governing Council has voted unanimously to disband the Youth Division and name a committee to reconstitute it "along lines which would conform to the policies and program" of the A. J. C. The action was taken, stated Chairman Carl Sherman of the A. J. C. Administrative Committee, because the Youth Division had refused to withdraw from the American Youth Congress and endorse the A. J. C.'s stand supporting aid to the Allies short of war.

Resisting dissolution of the Youth Division, Executive Secretary Samuel Freedman, who until June 14 had been on the A. J. C. payroll, called an "emergency conference" at the Hotel Center for Tuesday evening. In a circular letter to leaders of the Youth Division, Freedman termed the dissolution "a Blitzkrieg against the democratic rights" and a "high-handed fascist decree."

Sherman's statement said that the A. J. C. "has become convinced that certain leaders of the Youth Division were receiving and obey-ing instructions received from organizations other than the American Jewish Congress. This resulted in the unwarranted use of the name of the American Jewish Congress in support of organizations and policies to which it was opposed."

Dominican Republic To Take 1,000 Children

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK.—President James N. Rosenberg of the Dominican Republic Settlement Association this week announced plans for settlement of 1,000 refugee children and youths from England and France, under a new offer by Dominican Ex-President Rafael L. Trujillo, besides 200 refugees previously scheduled for colonization in San Domingo.

Equipment and one-year maintenance for the 1,200 will cost $230,000 in addition to transportation expenses, Rosenberg said. Details of transportation have not been worked out yet, but it is possible that free transportation will be provided by Britain or Canada or aboard a Red Cross ship.

The 1,000 refugees will include 500 children and 500 youths between the ages 16 and 20. "Our ability to expand the number whom we will aid will be controlled entirely by the money we can get," Rosenberg said.

CONSERVATIVE RABBIS DISCUSS OBLIGATIONS

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

DETROIT—On the keynote of American Jewry being "the sole surviving remnant of Jewish life in the diaspora," the fortieth annual convention of the Rabbinical Assembly of America, body of Conservative rabbis, opened Tuesday at Shaarey Zedek Synagogue with one hundred rabbis and a number of guests attending.

In the presidential address, Dr. Max Arzt of the Jewish Theological Seminary asserted that "our deliberations will have the sole aim of exploring and defining our increased responsibilities in the face of the present world crisis."

Tracing the world tragedy to abandonment of the League of Nations ideal by the United States, Rabbi Arzt branded isolationists as "stupid" and urged mobilization of all our resources for strengthening the democratic system and powerful defense against bloodthirsty brutalitarians.

Dr. Arzt proposed not only military conscription and a training program, which he described as realistic and mandatory, but also immediate economic rehabilitation of twelve million unemployed to save their shattered morale. Urging increased generosity in maintenance of an overseas relief program, Dr. Arzt proposed that American religious forces champion legislation for immediate admission of European children for the war's duration.

NOTES

Have you noticed that practically all the new officers of B'nai B'rith are lawyers? There's Max Farb, Doug Brown and Max Klezmer, president, first and second vice presidents, respectively. And, of course, Jack Kammins, the retiring president, is a member of the bar too. Looks like a monopoly to me.

POET LAUREATE

I wonder if Isidore Feibleman, "Poet Laureate" of the Indianapolis Lodge of B'nai B'rith is preparing more lyrical verses for the affair honoring Sam Mantel, at the Broadmoor, Tuesday. And the familiar picture of patriarchal Dr. A. S. Jaeger and his Packard is no more. Dr. Jaeger now drives a low slung Buick. But to get back to Mr. Feibleman, you recall the unscannable poetry he wrote for the Past President's night program of B'nai B'rith. Well, imbued with the iambic muse, Mr. Feibleman in nominating Sam at the Toledo convention, finished his speech with more poetry, and by now, the Poet Laureate title is a District wide acclamation.

WAR ECHOES: Believers in the occult will be happy to learn that Nostradamus, the Jewish physician who nearly four centuries ago foretold all sorts of historic events that actually came to pass, predicted not only the rise of Hitler and Mussolini but their eventual defeat. . . . It's a young general who will make his appearance near the Rhone River in France whom the seer picked as the man who will finish Hitler. . . . Latest Broadway appellation for Nazis is "Sons of Blitzkriegs," familiarly shortened to "Sons of Blitzes." . . . And in local fistic circles the impression is that Hitler's war machine won't be doing so well from now on because it's Mussolini-bound. . . . Did you know that Leslie Howard's son, who is serving England as a member of a mine-sweeper's crew, was born during an air raid in the first World War?

HEAR YE: It's beginning to look as if this war won't end without the formation of another Jewish Legion. . . . The Revisionist leader, Vladimir Jabotinsky, and Britain's Colonel J. H. Patterson are planning a revival of the unit they led in Palestine in the last World War, and hope to get Uncle Sam's permission to recruit in this country. . . . And one Joseph Otmar Hoffer, who heads what he calls the Nai Juda Movement, is seeking volunteers for "an American-Jewish Border Regiment for the defense of America and American Democracy." . . . Rabbis on the lookout for good material for some pretty hot sermons are advised to watch for Dr. Emanuel Lasker's "Community of the Future," which is being published next week. . . . It contains a chapter on Jewish leadership that will arouse a great deal of comment.

THIS AND THAT: The report is that the newly formed "American Anti-Fifth Column Committee" in New York's Yorkville section is sponsored by the Nazi Bund. . . . If true, this means that the patriotic-sounding title is merely a blind for a fifth column recruiting office. . . . Winchell, debunking George Sylvester Viereck's claim that he is not a Nazi propagandist, recalls that in 1934 Viereck testified before a congressional committee that he was paid $500 a month by the German Consul in New York for public relations work. . . . A new book in the making is said to be an expose on Hitler by none other than Fritz Thyssen, the German industrialist, who no longer is on good terms with the Fuehrer. . . . As one of those who helped bring Badolf to power, Thyssen ought to be able to tell an interesting story.

PLAIN TALK

By AL SEGAL
(Copyright by Seven Arts)

THE B'nai B'rith Magazine last month had an interesting letter from Rabbi Norman Diamond of Newcastle, Pa. It had to do with the functions of rabbis. The magazine's commentator had suggested that rabbis' sermons should concern themselves more with the distressful problems of the common life about them. They have been getting cosmic. They have been vying with the foreign affairs commentators, like Kaltenborn and Swing, and their pulpits seemed to have become forums for foreign affairs.

Rabbi Diamond defended the duty of rabbis to look at the world and tell their congregations what they think about it.

All this brings up the question: What do laymen expect of rabbis? After all, the layman is the consumer of the outgivings of rabbis and he should have something to say about the kind of sermons he prefers. I know there is an opinion among some rabbis that laymen should have nothing to say in the matter. The rabbi is their leader and he may not accept any dictation from them.

Well, nobody disputes the right of the rabbi's mind to be independent; yet he himself should be willing to say, "My mind and my heart are at the service of my people, and what do they require of me?"

If I were a rabbi I wouldn't load my sermons with current events. I would know that I couldn't contribute much to make this sorry world over. Telling Hitler what I think of him wouldn't alter the course of his destiny.

I would know that my congregation is getting foreign commentary enough from the croaking radio sets. The minds of the members are horribly confused anyway because of all they hear. They turn from end of the dial to the other trying to find somebody who really knows something, and at bedtime they know nothing more than they knew at the start.

"Yes," they say, "those commentators don't seem to be any wiser than we ourselves are."

So why should I, a rabbi, afflict their minds with confusion on top of confusion? I am only contributing more guesswork. I should be wise enough to know that any prophecy I give out today will be proved false by tomorrow's event. So swiftly do things move in these days. (It is unsafe to be a prophet except on long-range terms of, say, a thousand years.)

To what purpose, then, should I, a rabbi, preach? It seems to me that my main interest should be Mr. Zilch. I might really accomplish something to apply my mind to Mr. Zilch. I get nowhere when my mind marches all over Europe and stops at the windows of aggressors to shake a fist and with my voice attempts to consume the arrogant.

Yet Zilch offers possibilities of successful results. Zilch is nearly every man in my congregation. He is a faithful dues-payer. He is a man without pretensions. If he doesn't get a seat in the front pew he is satisfied with a place in the last.

Life to him is not cosmic. It has to do with his own problems. The current events interest him as happenings that impinge on his own existence. He is disheartened by it all.

Lately he has been asking himself a lot of questions: What's life all about anyway? Is it worth while to have been born? And to what end am I carrying on? Did I do justly to my children in bringing them into the world?

Zilch is thinking much of his being a Jew: What for am I a Jew? Just to keep on carrying this pain? Pain isn't my exclusive inheritance any more anyway; the whole world is in agony.

What is in our teaching to make me strong in times like these? What way of thinking is best suited to serenity? Everything's gone haywire and there must be something to enable my mind to go sanely through the confusion. I need some philosophy.

And what of God? Zilch asks. He has been dreadfully troubled about the old faith lately. The old faith taught him that the evil-doers come surely to unhappy ends and that righteousness always wins. He is wondering whether the old teaching remains valid when the evil-doers are highly mechanized and righteousness has only its valor to defend it.

While the rabbis (defenders of the faith) go far afield in foreign affairs the old faith falters. When they return from their wanderings they may find faith fled from the temples.

WHAT should Rabbi Segal do about Mr. Zilch? Certainly, he would not burden his mind with current events during the brief time when Zilch is seeking sanctuary in the temple. He has had enough of that outside.

Rabbi Segal should try to be responsive to everything that's troubling Mr. Zilch. The rabbi might not know all the answers to Zilch's questions, but he would attempt to formulate for Z a philosophy satisfactory to an intelligent mind in a troubled time.

Indeed, were I a rabbi (or a Christian minister) I should be feeling horribly worried about the foundations of my profession. I would feel troubled as to whether religion—as we know it—can survive in a world in which so many other decent things are being wrecked.

I would be mindful of the fact that religion is not my creation. I, as rabbi, can't keep it going merely by the force of my voice. I am only a custodian of the temple. Religion is of Mr. Zilch and its foundation rests on his heart.

He is wondering about the whole thing. He wants something to hold to in a fluid world but the old consolations of his faith seem to have become as insecure as everything (Continued on page 8)

News of Generalissimo Trujillo's offer to admit 1,000 refugee children and youths to the Dominican Republic recalled that thirty-seven colonists have been settled on the Sosua tract for some time now, since May 10, in fact. . . The thirty-seven, vanguard of what was hoped would soon be a colony of 500 families, are now thoroughly acclimated, we are informed. . . Not one of the group has lost weight, despite the arduous labor under the unusual climatic conditions. Among the thirty-seven, you may remember, is Danny Herzberg, the stowaway, who is not yet 2 years old. . . Mrs. Joseph A. Rosen, by the way, will shortly join her husband at Sosua. . . She was scheduled to leave New York June 27.

MISH-MASH

Dr. Otto Loewi, joint winner of the Nobel Prize in medicine for 1936 and former president of the B'nai B'rith Lodge in Graz, Austria, is scheduled to arrive in the United States some time this month to accept a professorship at the New York University School of Medicine. . . Work has been started on a monument to the late Oscar Straus in Washington. . . Big week for visitors to the J. T. A. office. Among welcome callers were Dr. Jacob Billikopf of Philadelphia, looking fresh as a daisy despite the heat; Leonard Nathan of the Omaha (Neb.) Jewish Press; Carl Alpert of the Boston Jewish Advocate, and Lou Rittenberg of the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia. . . The other day there arrived from Palestine a Miriam Hayman of Chicago. She was quoted by the shipnews reporters as having said she worked on a Tel Aviv English-language newspaper, the Palestine Express, for thirteen months. We are informed that the Palestine Express lasted just thirteen days after its first issue reached the streets. . . The real story behind Coughlin's radio fadeout is so hot it can't be printed. . . Treasurer Eliezer Kaplan of the Jewish Agency, who is here on a visit, may take a trip to Mexico, where he has a sister, Anna Kliatschko, a leader of the Pioneer Women's Organization. . . A new alcoholic drink being produced in Palestine is Mashki (My Drink). It's made from the essence of citrus fruit. Production followed experiments along the lines of those that produced Slivovitz, plus brandy of no little potency. . . Ralph Steinberg, a factor in the radio business, is the sparkplug of B'nai B'rith's century membership drive. And he has taken a deep interest in the Jabotinsky plan to raise a Jewish army to fight as an ally alongside of Britain. At the New York rally the other night, Steinberg gave $1,000 to the recruiting drive fund. . . Here's another Mefoofsky yarn of Walter Winchell's: Mefoofsky, W. W.'s favorite dialect character, was telling a friend that he had joined the army. "Did you get a commission?" the friend asked. "No," Mefoofsky replied, "straight selery."

The Misses Rosalie and Bettie Farber, Bettie Sachs and Ruth Traugott entertained sixty friends with a steak roast and party Saturday night at Broadmoor, honoring Miss Sonya Weinberg whose wedding takes place June 28 to Myron Glassberg of St. Louis, Mo.

MONUMENT UNVEILING

A monument for Mrs. Rose Rosenthal will be unveiled at 11 a. m. Sunday, June 30, at the Knesses Israel cemetery. Friends are invited.

The wedding will be held at the Broadmoor Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Rau who were married in Glencoe, June 6 have returned from their honeymoon and are at 44th and Broadway for the summer. Mrs. Rau was formerly Miss Marjorie Felsenthal of Glencoe, Ill.

Mrs. Sam Mantel's mother from New York is visiting her. She came for the Confirmation of her grandson, Thomas Mantel and for the 20th wedding anniversary, June 22nd of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mantel.

The Editor's Chair:

Dr. Jacob R. Marcus' statement to the C. C. A. R. in Charlevoix has a bitterly reminiscent tinge. "America's future is assured for our time. There is no problem, in this land, of Jewish survival." Remember Chamberlain's "peace in our time" statement.

Here's a Jewish Telegraphic Agency report of the acquittal of fourteen Christian Fronters on charges of seditious conspiracy. I thought you would want to read about it, but not knowing where else to print it, I place it here.

"From the time the jury received the case until the verdict the courtroom was continually crowded with interested spectators, and an overflow jammed the corridors. A majority of the onlookers were women who came to 'pray and hear the verdict of the boys.' Most of the men wore Christian Front buttons in their lapels. Anti-Semitic talk was rampant. Court reporters remarked that never had they heard so loud a denunciation of the Jews in a courthouse. Social Justice was openly sold in the corridors. In the men's room, treasurers of the various Front units were collecting dues for the current month.

"The boys,' as the defendants were called, mingled with the spectators—all except Bishop, who could not raise bail—and were continually surrounded by admiring throngs. Never did they appear nervous. They all sat smiling and had a cheery remark for all except the newspaper men who, they charged 'worked for Jews and never printed the truth.' They all declared that they would be found not guilty and after the verdicts were returned, each of the defendants turned to the press box, with an I-told-you-so smile.

"The spectators seemed to take the jury wait in picnic style. Many brought their lunches and ate them in the corridor. Christian Front units sat together and at intervals one of their number was sent to the near-by candy store to buy soda-pop, ice cream or candy. It was this care-free attitude that prevailed, for they seemed to be no doubt in the minds of a majority of the spectators that the 'boys would be free to carry on their noble work.'

"Before the verdict was returned, Judge Campbell warned the spectators, as he did on numerous prior occasions, that there was to be no demonstration. Though there was no outward incident in the courtroom, word quickly filtered through the building that the 'boys got off' and soon a large crowd gathered in front of the Federal building. Cliques gathered and as each defendant left the building a roar went up from the street throng."

Our Inability To Realize

IT MUST BE fairly obvious by now that most of us have no comprehension of the actualities of the situation in Europe. We read of the capitulation of the French Government, and cannot understand the act, not having seen the refugees crowding the roads, the destroyed cities, the dead strewn on the battlefield, the utter havoc, ruin and destruction. We are too prone to try to conceive of the situation in numbers and facts. The picture that it worth the 10,000 words escapes us.

If it is true that removed both by our psychological proclivity for wishful thinking and by actual distance, we are unimpressed by that which is spread across the front of every newspaper, then how can we visualize even in the nth degree that which is being visited upon the Jewish communities of Europe? Do our numbed sensibilities really understand what is taking place when the cultured and finely tended French Jewish community falls under Hitler's leash? Can our sense of right and wrong realize what France's concession to give up to the cursed Nazis all former refugees from nations vanquished by the Hitlerites means? How much of a dent in our shell of artificiality is made when King Carol, swinging like a pendulum copies the Nuremberg laws in his severe new anti-Semitic proclamations?

No, we can't grasp the true situation. It is contrary to human nature. We proceed along an upward trail of understanding at a fairly even pace, and all of a sudden our ability to digest is destroyed by a quick bombardment of catastrophic events, and our minds refuse to act any longer. Even the French refugees trudging slowly Southward were benumbed into a sort of lightheadedness born out of too much tragedy. I doubt that the ordinary Englishman staring into the muzzles of Hitler's guns, believes that within a few short weeks, his thousand-year-old nation and existence may be wiped out like the old City of Naples.

He is astounded and shocked by the French when they sign an Armistice. He calls it cowardice, which certainly is evading the facts. The Britisher can't begin to know that the present French Government realizes that the Nazis will mow down British forces like a high wind on a desert, and that probably after England is vanquished France has been promised a greater restoration of her land and former position in Europe.

And certainly we here in America cannot believe this talk of a new world in which moves must be made in accordance with Hitler's wishes, in which many of our friends here will become Hitler advocates urging an imitation of many of his policies. Definitely we can't conceive of these things as more than newspaper talk. Certainly they do not affect us.

Straightest Way Out

NOW try to figure out the controversy between the American Jewish Congress and its Youth Division. The accusation in the altercation is plainly that the Congress believed that the leaders of its Youth Division had come under the influence of Communistic teachings.

The difference arose over a principle, and since principles can never be compromised, thus the action.

There is one thing to be said about the entire incident. Most Jewish organizations, whatever the cost, would have avoided the break, or preferably would have effected it under the cover of secrecy. But the Congress, adhering to its democratic procedure, took the straightest way out.

Behind Big Eagle

WITH the opening Sunday of Big Eagle Camp for its eleventh season, attention should be called to the untiring efforts of Dr. Harry A. Jacobs, who has been chairman of the camp committee since the first federation camp was opened some twenty-five years ago.

While to the seventy-five children who will leave Sunday for the camp's first week, Big Eagle is the highlight of their summer vacation, in back of these weeks of joyful play and healthy recreation is hard work and hours of effort.

The community is prone to forget those behind the scenes when a project operates as successfully as does Big Eagle. Founded when an anonymous donor gave $10,000 to the federation for a children's camp, Big Eagle has grown through the generosity of many families and individuals and the work of many self-effacing members of the camp committee. The William Kobin Lodge, a memorial to Mr. Kobin from his wife; the Wolf Dormitory, a gift of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Wolf in memory of their daughter; the Joseph Barracks, donated by the family of Jackiel W. Joseph; the Helen Jacobs Cabin, a gift of the Council of Jewish Juniors in memory of Dr. Jacobs' daughter; a gift by the Council of Jewish Women in honor of Ella Feibleman; the Ebner Bridge, gift of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blatt and family, and the Charles S. Kahn Memorial Cabin given by Ferd and Carrol Kahn and the Kahn Memorial Fund; these and other gifts are evidences of the community's interest in the welfare of the community's children.

Big Eagle is one of the finest camps of its kind in the middle west. Its program not only is superbly directed, but is conceived to build into the brain and brawn of young bodies the elements which make for better members of the community.

Very few Jewish communities can boast of the generosity, the foresight and the workers in almost every direction as that of Indianapolis, and Big Eagle Camp is another of the testimonials to this social-mindedness of Indianapolis Jewry.

Current Comment

Sunday School Ineffective, Jewish Advocate Declares—Two rabbis participate in a symposium in the June issue of the B'nai B'rith National Jewish Monthly on the subject of Jewish Sunday schools. The net result of the symposium is the letting in of considerable light on a subject which has not been given sufficient earnest consideration. Several years ago when we ventured to criticize Sunday schools in these columns because we felt they were not fulfilling their function we were subjected to attack by those who saw in Sunday schools the maximum heights to which Jewish education could rise.

Now here are two rabbis, one of whom declares flatly that "Sunday schools have failed," while the other weakly states that they could succeed if they had more room, better equipment and competent teachers. Both of these men are telling the truth. The degree of Jewish education given in the average Sunday school is woefully and ridiculously inadequate. That it has elements of definite harm is pointed out by Rabbi Glasner when he says that the "Sunday school is a vicious institution because it permits the parents to rid themselves of their rightful responsibility in the Jewish education of their children and to salve their consciences with the thought that the Sunday school will do it for them."

Perhaps the weakest link in the whole Sunday school system is the teaching element. The fact that one is a graduate of a teachers' college or a normal school or that one teaches in the public schools certainly does not qualify an individual to teach in a Jewish Sunday school. Most Sunday school teachers have never gotten beyond the "Bible story" stage and have nothing in their own background which they can pass on to their pupils in the way of a positive, constructive, vital and significant Jewish way of life. There are, of course, notable exceptions, but these merely serve to intensify the lack of Jewish-conscious, Jewish-trained teachers.

We recommend, to all interested in this subject, that they read the symposium in the National Jewish Monthly; it hits the nail on the head.

Thus Mr. Zilch's faith crumbling by attrition caused by the pounding of guns and the blasting of bombs. The same evil forces that are grinding flesh and blood and stone into one rubble also are crashing against his heart where his religion is founded.

Rabbi Segal certainly would take steps to guard his temple and repair the damage. He would stay home close to Zilch's inquiring heart instead of going afar to interpret battles and diplomatic moves or to wring his hands in futile despair.
